

The two consumers want different things from the same data: dispatch trades accuracy for latency, finance trades latency for accuracy. That tension is the whole reason the architecture has two paths.