

(a) Healthy — the batch layer is one simulated day behind

(b) Batch layer behind — the dates in between are in NEITHER view

Redis holds only the CURRENT window, so it has already forgotten $d-2$ and $d-1$; the batch layer has not reached them yet. The API returns them in `uncovered_dates` and names the gap in consistency — returning fewer rows silently would make a lagging pipeline look like a quiet week.